Some new faces, some old after primary

Change.

Philadelphia City Council will be seeing some new faces after the primary with several incumbents voted out of office.

The primary election that saw former City Councilman Jim Kenney sweep the polls to a decisive victory in the Democratic nomination contest also saw some incumbents toppled and some new faces nominated.

Kenney, who took 60 percent of the vote, won by the largest percentage of any winner since 1979.

Meanwhile, pro-public school activist Helen Gym won a Democratic nomination to a City Council at-large seat, as did Philadelphia realtor Alan Domb, who has pledged to donate his City Council salary to the School District's budget, and attorney Derek Green — who took the most total votes of any Democratic Council at-large candidate.

Philadelphia Federation of Teachers President Jerry Jordan was positive on Gym's election.

"When it comes to education, no other candidate has her combination of experience, intellect and dedication to great public schools for every child in Philadelphia," Jordan said of Gym's stance on education.

Renominated were incumbent Democrats Blondell Reynolds Brown and Bill Greenlee.

Ed Neilson Jr. and Wilson Goode Jr. did not make the cut.

Republican incumbent at-large councilmen David Oh and Dennis O'Brien both won the nominations for their seats in a close race that saw the contenders not far below them.

Pets. Cat that fell from Fairmount high-rise had vertigo, docs say

A cat that fell from a 12th-story window in Fairmount had "high-rise syndrome," the PSPCA said.

The cat, Lilac, suffered broken legs and a mouth fracture but recovered after surgery at the UPenn veterinary hospital.

PSPCA officers discovered Lilac fell off a balcony while the owner was out of the home.

Cats are susceptible to the syndrome, which involves accidentally chasing bugs or bats out windows, the PSPCA said, and pet owners are urged to never leave pets alone near open windows. SAM NEWHOUSE

Stephanie Nicole Foster / NPD

Del. fugitive nabbed in Philly

Six months after she allegedly went on a pickpocketing spree in Delaware, Stephanie Nicole Foster, 32, was arrested in Philadelphia on Tuesday for theft and attempted theft charges.

Newark, Delaware, police say that on October 28, 2014, Foster took a wallet out of a Chipotle customer's bag between 5 and 6 p.m. Cards from that wallet were later used at local businesses, police said.

At 6:15 p.m. just blocks away, she unsuccessfully tried to rob a victim inside an Alex and Ani jewelry shop, police say.

"Upon realizing that her wallet had been removed by Foster, the victim confronted her and a brief physical altercation ensued," police said. "Foster fled after surrendering the wallet back to the victim."

Then, at 6:46 p.m., a few blocks down the same street, Foster attempted another unsuccessful robbery.

"Foster attempted to snatch another wallet from another victim ... implying that she was armed with a gun in the process," police said. "After a brief foot chase the suspect was apprehended by a group of citizens, however, she subsequently escaped as they attempted to call 911."

Foster was arrested by Delaware State Police and the U.S. Marshalls at a medical clinic in Philly. Police declined to comment on the type of clinic.

America. Webcam eagles in PA park prepare to leave nest

People from across the globe watched a pair of bald eagles near Pennsylvania's Corderus State Park via webcam as they kept two eggs warm through a snowstorm.

Now, those eggs have grown into six-week-old eaglets, who are preparing to leave the nest.

"If you are watching them regularly, you'll see a gradual increase in the amount of flapping and jumping in the air," said Patti Barber, the game commission's endangered bird biologist. "You might see an increase in height. You'll be amazed at how high they can get."

That's how eagles learn muscle coordination and develop the muscles they need to fly, Barber said.

Barber says they'll stay as long as their parents feed them, but continue to be dependent on their parents after they leave, learning to hunt, fish and scavenge by watching them.

"When they first leave the nest, they'll be fairly unsteady. They don't know how to land exactly where they want to," Barber said.

Half of Bald Eagles do not survive their first winter. Those that do can live 25 years in the wild, Barber said. DAN KELLEY

DA. Former dispatcher charged with antiterrorism fund theft

Citizen. Soldier. Crook?

That's what the Philadelphia District Attorney's office says about a former 911 dispatcher who collected $55,000 in payments meant to go to city workers fighting the war on terror.

Pendarvis Williams, 51, was charged with theft by deception and theft of property lost, mislaid or delivered by mistake for collecting cash from a program he was ineligible for. He turned himself in Tuesday.

In Jan. 2002, former Mayor John Street authorized $500 monthly payments to city employees supporting the war on terror.

Williams, who was hired as a police dispatcher in 1999, served in the National Guard from Dec. 2002 until October 2003 supporting Operation Enduring Freedom. He continued as a guardsman through May 2004, when he was ordered to full-time National Guard duty in active guard reserve status.

The DA's office says that at some point, Williams became ineligible for the program. He collected 111 monthly payments he was not entitled to, prosecutors say. METRO

City Council's website briefly hacked

Cybersecurity. Hackers took down City Council's website on Wednesday.

Hackers struck at City Council one day after primary elections.

PHLCouncil.com was replaced with the message "I am Muslim and Islam is my way of life. ... Your security is very low, patch your security."

"According to our service provider, PHLCouncil.com was hacked and replaced with new content at 7:03 a.m. today," said City Council spokeswoman Jane Roh. "Our service provider was temporarily locked out of the website, but was able to get back in and delete the hacked page at 9:09 a.m. The site was restored at 10:11 a.m."

According to Roh, no sensitive information was compromised during the hacking.

A group called <yb3r<ommand0s claimed responsibility for the hack. An online message from the group states "We don't hack. We show their security is bad."

"We have no information on who is behind the hacking. The website software has been updated to address vulnerabilities," Roh said.

Investigators probing Amtrak engineer's phone records

Federal investigators are analyzing the cellphone records of the engineer in last week's deadly Amtrak derailment to determine if he was making calls or texting when he was operating the train, officials said Wednesday.

Investigators are aware that engineer Brandon Bostian made calls and texts on the day of the May 12 crash in Philadelphia that killed eight and injured more than 200, but do not yet know if any of the activity was during the time he was operating the train, the National Transportation Safety Board said.

Amtrak engineers are required to turn off their phones when behind the controls.

The train was barreling north at double the 50 mph speed limit when it entered a sharp curve and derailed with 243 people on board.

A SEPTA train traveling nearby around the same time was hit by a projectile, but it is unknown what caused circular damage found on the Amtrak's windshield.

Five things you need to know

New video surfaces of Freddie Gray arrest

A new video has surfaced revealing a key part of the arrest of Freddie Gray, the Baltimore black man whose death from injuries he sustained while in police custody led to days of protests and a federal investigation.

The video, shot by a bystander and posted on The Baltimore Sun's website on Wednesday, shows officers putting Gray in leg shackles and handcuffs before placing him back in a police van headfirst and on his stomach.

Gray died on April 19 from spinal injuries suffered during his arrest a week earlier on April 12. His death sparked protests and rioting in the largely black city and heightened national tensions over police treatment of minorities.

Officers arrested Gray in west Baltimore for possessing a switchblade knife. They put him in a transport van without securing him with a seatbelt, Baltimore State's Attorney Marilyn Mosby said this month in announcing charges.

The video lasts a few seconds and shows the van stopped a block away from the arrest site. Gray is half-way out of the wagon, his stomach flat on the floor and his legs hanging off the back.

About 1,000 weapons found at Texas gang fight

About 1,000 weapons including firearms and knives have been recovered from the scene of a deadly Sunday battle between rival motorcycle gangs in the Texas city of Waco that left nine people dead, a police spokesman told CNN.

Gang members hid weapons in bags of potato chips and in bathrooms at the Twin Peaks restaurant, where they attacked each other.

"These were vicious gang members that were in our city," Waco police Sgt. Patrick Swanton said, adding an AK-47 rifle was among the weapons recovered.

Man who flew gyrocopter to US Capitol faces up to nine and a half years in prison

The Florida man who flew a gyrocopter onto the grounds of the U.S. Capitol in April faces up to nine and a half years in prison after being indicted by a federal grand jury.

Douglas Hughes, a 61-year-old mail carrier from Ruskin, Florida, was indicted on six charges including violation of the registration requirements for an aircraft and violation of national defense airspace, the U.S. Justice Department said.

His April 15 flight was maybe the most high-profile of several recent security lapses in the nation's capital. REUTERS

Man tasered, arrested at LAX

A man who was not cooperating with Transportation Security Administration officers in a terminal at Los Angeles International Airport was tasered and arrested on Wednesday, an airport police spokeswoman said.

The man was taken to a local hospital for treatment following the incident, Los Angeles Airport police Sgt. Belinda Joseph said in a statement.

Joseph said the man, who was not identified by authorities, was not cooperating with TSA officers in a screening area of Terminal 6 at LAX.

Second Marine dies after air accident in Hawaii

A second U.S. Marine died after being injured when a military aircraft made a "hard landing" during a training exercise in Hawaii.

The Marine Corps did not identify the Marine who was aboard the MV-22 Osprey tilt-rotor aircraft that crash-landed at Bellows Air Force Base in Windward Oahu on Sunday. Two other Marines remain hospitalized in stable condition after the accident.

On Tuesday, the Marine Corps identified the first Marine killed in the crash as 24-year-old Lance Cpl. Joshua Barron of Spokane, Washington. A total of 22 Marines were involved in the accident. REUTERS

Bin Laden fixated on attacking US interests: Documents

Intel. The documents were part of a cache seized by U.S. commandos who conducted the raid on bin Laden's house.

Osama bin Laden was fixated on attacking U.S. targets and pressured al Qaeda groups to heal local rivalries and focus on that cause, according to documents the United States says were seized in his hideout in Pakistan and released on Wednesday.

The documents published by U.S. intelligence also contained details of purported negotiations between al Qaeda, its allies in the Pakistani Taliban and representatives of Pakistani intelligence and what seemed to be an al Qaeda job application.

A July 2010 letter showed that bin Laden pressed al Qaeda in Yemen, one of the group's more active affiliates, to make peace with the government and focus on America.

Bin Laden's view was that Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula (AQAP) ought to sign a truce with Yemeni authorities or arrange an accommodation in which Yemeni authorities would leave the group alone "in exchange for focusing on America."

"The purpose is to focus on striking inside America and its interest abroad, especially oil-producing countries, to agitate public opinion and to force the U.S. to withdraw from Afghanistan and Iraq," according to a summary of the letter by a bin Laden associate identified as "Atiyyah."

Also seized were official U.S. passport application forms, formal U.S. indictments of al Qaeda-related figures, U.S. government accounts of al Qaeda's organization and details of the U.S. Embassy in Pakistan's "Toys for Tots" program.

Letterman wraps

The famous "Late Show" marquee will soon display Stephen Colbert's name. / HANNAH MATTIX, METRO

Farewell. We say goodbye to Dave after 33 years hosting late-night television.

The plaza outside the "Late Show with David Letterman" was oddly quiet early Wednesday morning, with few tourists seeking out will call tickets, and news trucks swarming. But by mid-afternoon, Broadway between West 53rd and 54th Streets was full of enthusiastic fans welcoming celebrity guests and waiting to give the famed late-night talk-show host his final send-off.

Notable names seen entering the final taping included Tina Fey, Jim Carrey, Peyton Manning, Barbara Walters and Julia Louis-Dreyfus.

After 33 years on the air and more than 6,000 episodes, Letterman, 68, taped his last show on Wednesday evening. Stephen Colbert, formerly of "The Colbert Report," will succeed Letterman.

At Hello Deli, around the corner from the Ed Sullivan Theater, Rupert Jee rang up a construction worker for a cup of coffee on Wednesday morning, selling Letterman T-shirts to fans and indulging tourists' questions about the late-night king.

Jee, a frequent guest on the show for the past 20 years, appeared on Letterman's penultimate show on Tuesday night, sharing his favorite "Late Show" moments.

"You know, I'm never good at being on camera, so I was more nervous than anything. I just keep my mouth shut and listen to what he says," Jee said.

"The last few weeks have been busy. It's like it was the first day he had arrived, you know, so now it's the final days and equally busy. Business has been good, but I'd give that all back if he'd stay a few more years. It's unfortunate, but all good things come to an end."

Reed Sandridge stood outside the building, holding an unstamped letter, addressed to Letterman.

"I just thanked him for making us laugh for the last 30 years," said Sandridge, who has been writing one handwritten letter a day all year. "You kind of feel like you know him, you've been through his heart surgery. You know the crazy woman who used to break into his homes."

Joe Toplyn, who worked as a writer on both NBC's "Late Night with David Letterman" and CBS' "Late Show," told Metro one of his most memorable experiences was writing a bit where Letterman appeared to be at his desk in the studio, but when the camera pulled back, he was doing the segment from the back of a flatbed truck going 60 mph on a highway in New Jersey. Additional reporting by Lakshmi Gandhi.

Hotbed of rights fight. Gay rodeo tests tolerance in Arkansas

On a clear Arkansas spring afternoon after a day of horseback riding, Wade Earp sighed and said, "I wish we didn't have to have a gay rodeo. I wish we could just rodeo."

Earp was a contestant at the International Gay Rodeo event held last month in Arkansas, a Bible Belt state on the front lines of the fight over gay rights and one of the 13 U.S. states where same-sex marriage is not recognized.

"Everybody deserves equal treatment. Everybody deserves equal rights," said Earp, 45, a native of Benton, Arkansas, where he was raised in a fundamentalist Christian denomination, and a competitor in barrel racing, calf roping and steer riding.

The 16th Diamond State Rodeo held in Little Rock drew 75 contestants, far outnumbering spectators, from a dozen states and Canada, all hoping to qualify for the International Gay Rodeo 2016 finals in

Members of the International Gay Rodeo Association / REUTERS

Las Vegas.

"For years, no one would allow us to advertise it," said Sandy Bidwell, president of the Diamond State event, for fear protesters would create a disturbance.

"My attitude is let them. It's free advertising."

This year, they put up a sign directing traffic to the event, and no protesters came.

For two days, gays and lesbians and at least one transgender man competed in barrel racing and bull riding on the soft soil of a fairgrounds arena at the rodeo that looked like just about every small-scale rodeo held across the country.

The arena's railings were festooned with the banners of corporate sponsors advertising products such as Bud Light beer, Jack Daniels whiskey and Gun Oil personal lubricant.

Oh good, more Gwyneth Paltrow parenting quotes

Let it be known that Gwyneth Paltrow has relaxed her attitudes about exactly what her two kids are allowed to ingest, finally ending the embargo on "bad" foods, she tells Women's Health. "My food philosophy is nothing should be ruled out," she tells the magazine. "I don't believe in saying, 'You're not allowed that.' If my kids want a Shirley Temple with the radioactive cherry in it, go for it, you know?" So she's gone from outright banning foods she deems inappropriate to laying on some next-level laissez-faire parental guilt-tripping? High marks, ma'am.

Oh, and if you're interested in getting that Goop-endorsed glow that Paltrow rocks on the magazine's cover, it's actually really simple. She says she just believes in "exercise, laughing, having sex, being yourself." So if you're not getting the results you want, clearly you're doing one of those wrong.

Olsen twins to Netflix: 'You got us, dude!'

So remember all that talk about how Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen had no interest in doing "Fuller House" and that was fine because their former co-stars didn't want them around anyway? Yeah, about that. A source tells Life & Style that the twins have had a change of heart and are signing on to reprise their shared role as Michelle Tanner for the Netflix reboot. "They figured it would be a good break from their usual work routine to go and join their old cast members," the source says. "They are both going to join in the reunion in some capacity." This, of course, raises more questions than it answers — like how do you work in two very famous actresses for one part? Or will Michelle have a long-lost evil twin? And what exactly is the Olsen twins' "usual work routine"?

The latest from wickedly funny YouTuber Anna Akana takes the world of police station misogyny and flips it on its head, swapping genders for the aptly titled "Women Can Be Dicks Too." George Clooney is adjusting to married life

So how is George Clooney's life changing now that he's no longer a swinging bachelor? It turns out that Amal Clooney hasn't been cramping his style too much — unless he gets out of line. "There is that moment when I've worn the same T-shirt, like, for a week that she says, 'Really?'" Clooney tells Jimmy Kimmel during an interview. But just in case you think stars really are just like us, he's not talking about literally the exact same unwashed shirt for a week straight but more just one style of shirt multiple days in a row. "I fake her out once in a while," he explains. "I get different colors of the same T-shirt." Oh, you prankster, you. So it's more of a fashion faux pas than a hygienic concern. Rich people, am I right?

James Corden: What Letterman means to me

Television. The "Late Late Show" host recounts, in his own words, what he learned about the job from Letterman.

"I didn't grow up here, and David Letterman wasn't on in Britain," Corden said at the CBS Summer Soiree this week. "The first time I ever came to America was in 2006, for 'The History Boys' on Broadway. I was staying in what can only be described as an awful apartment in Manhattan, and about a month in, I got incredibly homesick. I'd never been away that long before, and I would go home after every show while a lot of the cast would go out. I just wasn't in the mood for it.

"I didn't know about this phenomenon of late-night television that airs at, you know, midnight and 11:30 every night. I would get into bed feeling very homesick, not being able to call home or speak to my parents or sisters, and I would put the TV on, and there was this guy. I found a connection with him in the way that so many others have — and in a much deeper sense, over the last 30 years — where it suddenly became clear to me what the power of a late-night host is. It is that you're checking in with a friend. And suddenly, that last hour of my day stopped being a time where I wished I could ring my parents but became a time where I would really look forward to seeing what this guy was going to do tonight or what he was going to say. And he was talking to me, directly to me, in bed. And then I realized that the theater was right around the corner. I didn't even know that!

"If someone told me in 2006 that I would be the person following that show and have something to say, I would never have believed them. And now I'm here saying I still sort of can't. It's not lost on me that it's an absolute honor to be in my position. I don't know how long our show will last, but to think there might be somebody somewhere in one place who finds that connection with our show that I found with his those lonely nights would be thrilling for us. "I sent him an email asking him if we could do an interview with him, and he sent me the loveliest email. He said, 'I hope you don't mind, I'm not going to do the interview. I think people are sick of hearing from me.' And I remember thinking he couldn't have been more wrong, and I still think that now."

Apps. Pandora, Spotify and Songza have a new contender.

Until now, the only people who have really cared about MixRadio have primarily been Windows users, but the streaming service announced Monday that it is now available on iOS and Android devices. MixRadio claims that what makes it unique is that it's super-simple to use and also extremely personal to a user's musical taste. To get started, a user just inputs a few artists he or she likes, and MixRadio launches a station with those artists plus similar artists. The app also has curated playlists based on mood or activity. Users can download mixes and listen in places without Wi-Fi, such as on the subway. The app is free and can be downloaded from Apple's App Store or Google Play.

Summer of amusements

Take a nostalgic trip back to childhood summers at the Jersey Shore at one of these kitschy mini-golf courses — or take a ride aboard Kong.

MADELINE PRESLAND

WHERE TO EAT, DRINK & PLAY

Wildwood Crest

Duffers Miniature Golf

5210 Pacific Ave.

This whimsical, nautical-themed course looks like it'd be right at home in a Disney film. After you play your 18 holes — $5 to $8 — treat yourself to homemade ice cream at Duffers family-run restaurant next door.

Cape May

Cape May Miniature Golf and Cocomoe's

315 Jackson St.

Only in Cape May would a gazebo-like structure painted the color of Pepto Bismol not stand out. This classic course, complete with waterfalls, is adjoined to Cocomoe's Premium Ice Cream Parlor, so stop by for a post-golf treat. The course is $8 per person for 18 holes.

Seaside Heights

Barnacle Bill's Amusements

1968 Hwy 35

Set just a few sandy steps from the beach, this course has been in business for 50 years and is going strong again after Hurricane Sandy forced a major remodeling. Pay $8 for 18 holes and keep an eye out for Snooki and Jwow while you putt — this is the "Jersey Shore" town, after all.

Ocean City

Tee-Time Golf

E. Seventh St. at the Boardwalk

It's so old school, it doesn't have a website. And according to one Yelp reviewer, "they're still charging 1985 prices" — we're talking 20 holes for $3 per person before 6 p.m. and $4 in the evenings. Beach views and a vintage vibe make this one a must.

Atlantic City

Opry Glowgolf

The Pier Shops at Caesars

Leave it to AC to conjure up a psychedelic putt-putt experience. Prices per game are based on age group and range between $5 and $10 for 54 holes. There's also a laser maze to challenge your contortion skills, and since everything is indoors it's a perfect activity for a rainy day.

Wildwood

Kong on Morey's Surfside Pier

25th St. and the Boardwalk, Wildwood

The '70s boardwalk landmark is back: Kong, a "gorilla-themed amusement ride," has returned, with the ape himself, clad in an "I love Wildwood" T-shirt and holding a classic tram car, perched 60 feet above the action on one of Morey's three piers of rides and games. The seaside attraction also includes two beachfront water parks.

The music lineup includes The Hooters, Darius Rucker, The Killers, Meghan Trainor, 311, Counting Crows and Willie Nelson, with more to be announced.

The Pool After Dark

Anyone can go to the pool during the day. But it's after dark that things get more interesting — just don't drink and dive. This massive, multilevel nightclub at Harrah's is enclosed in glass for an indoor/outdoor feel. If you're up for a splurge, reserve a poolside table or private cabana. Resident DJs include three celebs we all love to hate but still want to see up close: Pauly D, Paris Hilton and Brody Jenner.

Anthem

The Tropicana is undergoing a makeover, with renovated rooms, a new fitness center, upcoming retail and an overall "Atlantic City is back in business" vibe. What hasn't changed? Anthem is still the hot spot for the after-hours crowd. The party doesn't start until 11 p.m. — and on weekends, it goes all night. The Trop may soon be lighting up the night in a different way too, with a light show on the boardwalk facade.

Beach Ball Drop

Resorts is kicking off Memorial Day weekend and the summer season on Friday with music, games, giveaways, stilt-walkers, a live broadcast from WMMR's Pierre Robert — and 5,000 beach balls that will drop over the boardwalk at 5 p.m. Top off the festivities with a frozen cocktail at Margaritaville, the Jimmy Buffet restaurant/bar/casino space celebrating its second anniversary at Resorts.

The Academy of Natural Sciences continues Mega-Bad Movie Night, a live version of the "Mystery Science Theater 3000" format, with snarky comedians mocking their way through a cheesy movie. This round, it's the 1986 film "The Fly," directed by David Cronenberg. As usual, science gone wrong (and inaccurately portrayed) equals comedy gold. The evening features an all-female panel for the first time.

Dali Museum

Fine art in Florida

Disney, beaches and oranges are the things most commonly associated with Florida, but if you're more interested in Monet than Mickey Mouse, the Sunshine State also has a wealth of art museums.

One of the best is the Salvador Dali Museum in that vacation haven, St. Petersburg. The Spanish surrealist was friends with the museum's founders, Reynolds and Eleanor Morse, and what began as their private collection became this world-class museum with 1,300 of the artist's works, the largest such collection outside Europe. It's especially good if you want to see his early works, particularly his more conventional landscapes.

St. Petersburg also has the Museum of Fine Arts, with a permanent collection that's one of the finest in Florida and includes Renoir, Monet, Cezanne, Willem de Kooning, Georgia O'Keeffe and many more.

Not surprisingly, Miami has a large number of good art museums, with one of the most popular being the Perez Art Museum Miami in Museum Park. It displays 20th and 21st century art with a remarkable collection of Latin American works in particular, reflecting Miami's diverse population. The Frost Museum also has an extensive collection of contemporary Latin American and American art, while European art is more the focus at the Bass Museum of Art in Miami Beach.

Orlando also has a thriving arts scene and an outstanding museum in the Mennello Museum of American Art in Loch Haven Park.

It's only small compared to the other museums mentioned, but with a focus on American art, the museum certainly has depth. It contains a wide selection of extraordinary work by the primitive artist Earl Cunningham and a lovely lakeside sculpture garden. So remember: Florida can be about Dali, not just Disney. INSIGHT GUIDES | MIKE GERRARD AND DONNA DAILEY

Snorkeling tour in Cozumel

How to cruise the Yucatan Peninsula

For cruisers who want a taste of Mexico's stunning Caribbean coast, head to the beautiful island of Cozumel.

The most common route is to dock on the island — where you will typically find several ships lined up in a row — and book a shore excursion to the mainland either through your cruise line or a tour operator. How much time your ship spends in port will determine how much of the Yucatan you can see.

For those who are staying late into the evening (as some Carnival ships have started doing recently on the nights they have concerts onboard) you can swim in a cenote (an underground river that runs through caves) or check out Chichen Itza, the area's most famous Mayan ruin. It's a long day, but both are worth the trek in from the island. Then again, so are the beaches — which are lined with palm trees and sit on clear blue water. And don't forget the snorkeling, especially since the reef here is the second-largest in the world. INSIGHT GUIDES | SHERRI EISENBERG

Chrysler
Museum of Art

Norfolk, Virginia, promises so many real-life nautical, artistic and nature adventures, the kids just might abandon their tablets and online games.

Start at Nauticus (www.nauticus.org), the massive exploration center on the Elizabeth River. It's all about everything on, under and around water. Stand on the observation deck while watching ships and tugs sail by and learn about maritime commerce. Command a submersible exploration vehicle and collect samples via a robotic arm. Budding meteorologists analyze weather patterns, experience storms in a hurricane simulator and discover the latest in tsunami research. There are shark touch tanks and marine life labs for future marine biologists.

The battleship Wisconsin is berthed here. A self-guided tour is included in the admission fee. For an additional cost, the Topside Tour visits other areas, including the Captain's Quarters and bridge. It's a 90-minute tour for those 8 and up.

Norfolk is the world's largest naval base. See the aircraft carriers, destroyers and subs from the water on a two-hour narrated cruise (www.navalbasecruises.com) or a 45-minute bus tour. If you're lucky, one of the massive ships will be in the even more massive dry dock.

Find a complete change of pace at The Chrysler Museum of Art (www.chrysler.org). The most kid-friendly gallery is the Ancient Worlds exhibit with its Egyptian mummies. There's a create-your-own art studio too. Kids 10 years and older (and their parents) can take a class in glassblowing, flame working, or stained glass and finish with a unique souvenir.

The Norfolk Botanical Garden's Children's Adventure Garden (www.norfolkbotanicalgarden.org) is good for a half-day. In good weather, get wet with the bubblers, foggers and sprays at the interactive play area. Elsewhere, there's a "dirt factory" with an oversized tree house, where it's all about bugs and soil, and a "living wall" edible garden.

There are lots of packages available, including some family-oriented ones, which include admissions and lodging, at www.visitnorfolktoday.com.

Letters to the editor

Beware of barbecued bugs

What ever happened to the good old days when the worst things we had to fear on Memorial Day were traffic jams and indigestion?

This year, it's all about food poisoning by the nasty E. coli, salmonella, and Listeria bugs lurking in hamburgers, hot dogs, and chicken nuggets at millions of backyard barbecues. The U.S. Meat and Poultry Hotline's advice is to grill meat and chicken products longer and hotter. They fail to caution that high-temperature grilling forms lots of cancer-causing compounds. Do we really need to choose between food poisoning and cancer? Luckily, enterprising food manufacturers and processors have met this challenge head-on by developing a great variety of healthful, delicious, convenient plant-based veggie burgers, veggie dogs, and soy nuggets.

These wholesome foods don't harbor nasty bugs or cancer-causing compounds. They don't even carry cholesterol, saturated fats, drugs, or pesticides. And, they are right there, in the frozen food section of our supermarket.

This Memorial Day, let's stay safe on the roads and safe at the family barbecue.

FANTASY FOOTBALL: AVOID DRAFTING THESE ROOKIES

There is a sect of fantasy owner that loves the excitement that comes with the unknown. They'll be the ones reaching for rookies not because they're in a good spot — but simply because they're rookies.

Guys like Melvin Gordon, Nelson Agholor, Breshad Perriman and Tevin Coleman are upsides. Let's flip it to the negative side: the rookies to avoid in fantasy drafts.

Gurley a ghost

The Rams took Todd Gurley with the idea he'll be their foundation back for the next six to eight years. So they've already stated they won't rush him back off his November ACL tear, a hint that he could open the season on the PUP list. Even once Gurley does get on the field, he'll be dealing with a bottom-barrel offensive line, the presence of a competent backup in Tre Mason and a brutal schedule.

Jaguars stink

The allure of the three-down back is hard to resist because it's so rare in today's NFL. Many people, myself included, fell victim to the promises of a massive Toby Gerhart workload last year. The biggest problem was a Jaguars offense that failed to sustain drives and

NFL news

The NFL's decision to move extra points back to the 15-yard line won't affect fantasy scoring very much. Over the last two years, NFL kickers have made 96 percent of attempts between 31 and 33 yards. Although that four percent difference should make coaches go for two more often, in reality it won't. The one team's players that do get a slight boost are the Eagles, as we know hyper-aggressive Chip Kelly will be among the league leaders in two-point attempts.

provided so few scoring opportunities. They project to be better this year with the addition of Julius Thomas and a step forward from Blake Bortles, but it's still an uphill battle for new feature back T.J. Yeldon. He's a better dynasty prospect than redraft as he develops.

A cub among Bears

Kevin White is a freak physical specimen, but it remains to be seen if that will immediately translate to the NFL. That concern is amplified when we add in other factors such as market share of targets and a conservative John Fox scheme that will be run-based in an effort to hide mistake-prone Jay Cutler. With Alshon Jeffery, Martellus Bennett and Matt Forte all ahead of White on the target totem pole, the No. 7 overall pick is a real threat to disappoint.

It's hard being the man at the bottom

MLB. Being the last man in the Phillies' revolving-door rotation can be an unpredictable job.

When you're riding in the bottom of a pitching rotation — especially one as volatile as the Phillies' — things can tend to get a bit bumpy.

Jerome Williams has been in Sean O'Sullivan's and now Severino Gonzalez's shoes, and he says they're usually not a comfortable fit.

When you're the ace like Cole Hamels, everything's laid out nicely. It's almost etched in stone that you'll take the mound every fifth day. But when you're the No. 4 or No. 5 guy, there's no stability. You're never sure when — or even if — your turn will come, and you often must adjust on the fly.

"I've been through that," said the 33-year-old Williams, a former first-round draft pick now pitching for his seventh team. "I know how to keep myself prepared. It's embedded in my brain so I can do it without blinking."

But not always. "It is tough when you're a young guy," said Williams, who lost to the Phillies in his 2003 debut then watched the Phils' Kevin Millwood throw a no-hitter the following day. "At that time, I didn't know how to deal with it. It's tough to swallow because you're used to being that No. 1 or No. 2 guy in Triple-A, and all of a sudden, you're the No. 5 guy in the majors. You've got to relearn some things. You just try and watch and learn from veterans."

O'Sullivan has been called up and sent down this season. / GETTY IMAGES

While the fact you're in "The Show" beats the alternative, it's often a thankless job. The 22-year-old Gonzalez gets the call in Colorado Wednesday simply because Chad Billingsley went down with a shoulder sprain. A few weeks back, Gonzalez was shelled in his major league debut but pitched well enough to get the win in Miami five days later.

His reward: a ticket back to the Lehigh Valley.

"It's part of the game," Billingsley said just hours before learning his comeback from a torn flexor tendon and Tommy John surgery would be aborted for at least a month. "Guys go on the DL or someone gets healthy, and they have to make a move. You can't be naive. You understand it's a game and a business."

O'Sullivan knows that all too well.

"You fly into a situation where you haven't been and maybe don't have the same rapport with the catcher," said O'Sullivan, who went more than four calendar years between big league wins. "And sometimes, you have one opportunity to try and prove something. Sometimes you're gonna show up, pitch and go back down

Quoted

"As a ballplayer, you can only control what you do. Keep performing for them and make a good impression, so that next time, you're gonna be that guy."

Chad Billingsley

regardless. So it's more of a mental than physical grind. You just try and take it the best you can and prepare a day at a time. But it's really tough."

And as a constant reminder, no matter how long you've established yourself, it can suddenly change. Considering the Phils went to spring training with an expected rotation of Hamels, Cliff Lee, Aaron Harang, Williams and David Buchanan and have already had to call on Billingsley, O'Sullivan and Gonzalez shows how tenuous putting a rotation together can be.

"It's been a while, but I've been in that position," Harang said. "I came to realize with Oakland, when we had [Mark] Mulder, [Tim] Hudson and [Barry] Zito every single night, they'd go seven, eight or nine innings. I was starting, but I was also the long guy in the pen. If the fifth day would come, and we'd have an off-day, they'd bump me around."

That's the typical life when you're in the back end of the rotation, which Williams and O'Sullivan have already learned, and Gonzalez is quickly finding out. Here today. As for tomorrow, we'll have to see.

Cole Hamels, you have no idea how lucky you are.
